(2) Information Technology Center

The following services can be used with the educational (student) user ID and password issued after enrollment.

- Microsoft 365
- Anti-virus software
- Campus LAN (ryukyu-ap), email, e-Learning

Users of the campus LAN are requested to observe the "Top 9 Information Security Rules" and use the LAN responsibly and sensibly.

Important notices from the Information Technology Center will be sent via e-mail and the Information Technology Center's website, so please check them regularly.

University Network and Information Security

For safe use of the Internet

Top 9 Internet Safety Rules

Install anti-virus software.

Install antivirus software on your computer to prevent viruses.

Keep your OS and software up-to-date.

Update to the latest improved programs provided free of charge by the manufacturer to combat new computer viruses.

Before shopping online, make sure the store is trustworthy.

Online shopping is a convenient way to purchase products, movies, and music, but choose a store you can trust to avoid scams.

Keep your passwords safe like valuables.

Your password is as important as your home key. Keep your password in an out of sight place if you are going to write it down so that others do not know it.

Duplicate valued information before you lose it.

To ensure that valuable data, such as photos of memories with family and friends, are not lost due to computer failure, duplicate and store them on a separate storage device.

Do not ever let anyone know your login ID or password.

Ignore emails you don't recognize that ask you to enter your bank account number, PIN, login ID or password, or credit card information.

Be careful of loss or theft when you go out.

When taking a PC or smartphone with valued information, set passwords for devices and files, and not lose or have them stolen.

Do not open attachments you do not recognize.

Unrecognized e-mails may contain computer viruses. Do not open attached files or click on links as they may contain viruses.

First consult when you are in trouble, without being alone.

If you receive fraudulent or fictitious e-mails, or if a virus prevents you from closing a web page that you have opened, do not worry alone, but consult with various consultation services.

(4) Health Administration Center

The Health Administration Center is a facility designed to maintain and promote the health of students, faculty, and staff. Doctors and/or nurses can treat first aid for minor injuries (cuts, bruises, sprains, etc.) and medical emergencies (headaches, stomachaches, cold symptoms, etc.) on campus. If the Health Administration Center cannot provide such services, the student will be referred to a hospital or other appropriate facility.

All students must receive a medical examination once a year (in April or November) at the Health Administration Center.
